

To support your declaration of conscience regarding nuclear weapons, you might be ready to consider a concrete action step.

As discussed at the October 2017 Ploughshares Calgary meeting, one sensible move is to divest your investment portfolio of shares in nuclear weapons producing corporations. Working with your financial planner, you could go further and arrange not to participate in mutual funds that invest in these companies. Perhaps you could bring your influence to bear on your pension fund, too.

Removing these companies from your portfolio need not affect your bottom line. Data is showing that ethical funds are performing equally to traditional funds, and in many cases, outperforming them. Please seek advice from your investment professional.

Our data is pulled from a European site: dontbankonthebomb.com Their 2016 Global Report on the Financing of Nuclear Weapons lists 27 major weapons producers and examines the investments of over 400 global financial service providers. We encourage you to check out the site and report. For your convenience, we list only the top ten corporations below. Investments are shown in millions of USD.

Top 10 Nuclear Weapon Producing Companies in 2016

To support your declaration of conscience regarding nuclear weapons, you might be ready to consider a concrete action step.

As discussed at the October 2017 Ploughshares Calgary meeting, one sensible move is to divest your investment portfolio of shares in nuclear weapons producing corporations. Working with your financial planner, you could go further and arrange not to participate in mutual funds that invest in these companies. Perhaps you could bring your influence to bear on your pension fund, too.

Removing these companies from your portfolio need not affect your bottom line. Data is showing that ethical funds are performing equally to traditional funds, and in many cases, outperforming them. Please seek advice from your investment professional.

Our data is pulled from a European site: dontbankonthebomb.com Their 2016 Global Report on the Financing of Nuclear Weapons lists 27 major weapons producers and examines the investments of over 400 global financial service providers. We encourage you to check out the site and report. For your convenience, we list only the top ten corporations below. Investments are shown in millions of USD.

Top 10 Nuclear Weapon Producing Companies in 2016

